Cúinne na Gaeilge / Irish Language Corner

Why do most Irish people no longer speak Gaelic?

Answer: It is not by accident...it is because of hundreds of years of laws and pressures against its use. This started with the Statutes of Kilkenny in 1366 (here is a small quote from them)
'All English men.and Irish living among them must use English surnames, speak English and follow English customs. If any Englishman or Irishman dwelling among the English use Irish speech, he shall be attainted of his lands go to his lord till he undertake to adopt and use English.'
